Dear Ms [REDACTED]

I am writing to inform you of the laboratory values that were obtained today, [REDACTED] 2011. If you recall, your INR value was reported to you during your office visit. This was normal at 1.0. Your creatinine was also normal at 0.7. Your liver function tests do reveal stability. All of your liver function tests are absolutely normal except your AST which is 44. However, this is a very mild elevation as normal limits are from 14 to 41. Previously, this lab value was 40 on [REDACTED] 2011.

The above is encouraging news. I encourage you to continue on your azaTHIOprine at 100 mg per day as previously discussed. If you have any questions regarding the above, please feel free to contact our office at 715-221-7800. We otherwise plan to obtain laboratory values in three months and to see you back in the office in six months.

Sincerely

[REDACTED]

NOTE: This is a patient in her middle 40's who was diagnosed many years ago with chronic progressive hepatitis. The only two options given her were: 1) eventual death, or 2) liver transplant with a poor future prognosis. She and her husband decided to seek alternative options and after working with her for less than one year twice in the last few months, by independent examination at the Marshfield Clinic, they have tested and examined her and found she is well. How did this happen? Using the target-specific methods of natural & alternative medicine, and prayer of course by her and her family. This woman now literally has a new lease on life and has a bright and promising future compared to her prognosis and death expectations from before.
